TAFT PRAISES UNION LABOR AND PROPER ORGANIZATION

Promises to Introduce Measures to Prevent Abuse of Injunction Privilege.

WOULD REFORM COURTS

Warns Unions to Avoid Violent Methods and Breaches of the Law.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—A strong defense of labor's right to organize in a lawful manner, was the feature of an address by President Taft in Orchestra hall tonight.

Mr. Taft's address follows:

"It is just about a year ago tonight that I made a speech in this hall to some 1,800 members of the railroad labor organizations, in which I attempted to convince them that there was nothing in my decisions as a circuit judge in labor injunction cases which ought to make them vote against me for the presidency. It was a critical time in the campaign, and as I review that whole controversy there was hardly another speech in my campaign of greater importance to me than that one; and in view of the result of the election I look back upon it now with especial interest.

I asserted that I was as much interested as anyone in maintaining the cause of labor, when labor organized or unorganized, by proper methods sought to better its condition by legislation or otherwise. I said I expected to recommend to Congress, if I were elected, that interstate railroads be required to adopt any additional devices found useful for the purpose of saving from loss of life or limb, employes engaged in the dangerous business of railroading. I also said I favored the adoption of legislation looking to a proper definition of the cases in which preliminary injunctions might issue without notice and defining the procedure in such matters.

To Stop Injunction Abuse.

I have not forgotten my promise, and I proposed in the next session of Congress to recommend the legislation on the subject of injunction which was promised in the Republican platform, and to see whether by such legislation it is not possible to avoid even a few cases of abuses that can be cited against the federal courts in the exercise of their jurisdiction.

I do not think trade unionism was greatly aided by the attempt to drag all organized labor into politics and to induce it to vote one way, but that does not prevent my placing a proper estimate upon the immense good for labor in general, which its organization and its efforts to secure higher wages have accomplished.

There is an element among employers and investors which is utterly opposed to the organization of labor. I can not sympathize with this element in the slightest degree. I think it is a wise course for laborers to unite to defend their interests. It is a wise course for them to provide a fund by which, should occasion arise and strikes or lockouts follow, those who lose their places may be supported pending an adjustment of the difficulties. I think the employer who declines to deal with organized labor and to recognize it as a proper element in the settlement of wage controversies is behind the times.

There is not the slightest doubt that if labor had remained unorganized,

TAFT SENDS LONG WIRELESS TO PINCHOT

Chief Forester Dictates Answer in Fishing Camp on San Clemente.

AVALON, Catalina Islands, Cal., Sept. 16.—A voluminous message from President Taft to Gifford Pinchot, chief forester of the United States, was sent from the mainland at Los Angeles by wireless to this station yesterday and taken from here to San Clemente island on the launch Cornell. The message was read by Pinchot at midnight last night as he sat in his camp and deciphered it by the light of a smoky lantern.

After reading the message, Pinchot declined to make any statement regarding its contents or the recent developments in the Ballinger incident, and immediately busied himself with writing a reply to the President, which was brought back to the wireless station here by the crew of the Cornell.

Pinchot will return from his camp on San Clemente to Avalon on Tuesday next, and then will go direct to the mainland.

With Pinchot at Clemente is former Governor Pardee, of California, who severely scored Secretary of Interior Ballinger in a speech at Spokane several weeks ago.

The Associated Press correspondent who went in a launch to San Clemente was unable to secure from either Pinchot or Pardee expression regarding the action of the President in exonerating Secretary Ballinger from the charges made against him by L. R. Glavis, chief of the field division of the general land office.

Pinchot and Pardee, in company with C. P. Holder, the author and angler, have been living the simple life on Clemente for two days.

COEDS IN UNIVERSITY AND SEGREGATION IN SCHOOL

FAVORS ONE YEAR RULE

Noted Educator Is in the city on Return From Seattle and Northwest Canada.

That coeducation in the university is eminently proper, but only possibly so in college; that segregation of the sexes in secondary schools is most desirable, and that the one year rule in college athletics should be rigidly enforced, are the opinions expressed last night by Charles C. Harrison, provost of the University of Pennsylvania who is a guest at the Antlers hotel.

"I believe in equal opportunities for both sexes," said Mr. Harrison; "but with that as a basis of belief, I can see no reason why coeducation is necessary. Coeducation is largely a matter of beginnings. In the east, we begun without coeducation, and have so since continued, while in the west, it appears that coeducation was cheaper and more practicable. A leading educator unwittingly struck the keynote of the situation when he characterized coeducation as "coo-education." Since education in this country, in the seventeenth century, was formerly almost wholly a matter of educating men for the ministry, the educational rights of women were neglected, I would not detract from its immense value in these newer states. But I believe it still to be in its experimental stage, outside of the university.

"The separate High schools for boys and girls in Philadelphia and many other large cities of the east prove conclusively to my mind their advisability. I see no reason, outside of possibly financial ones, why separate schools would not be more practicable in the west than the present system. This question of segregation, however, becomes absurd if carried too far down in the grades.

That the one-year athletic rule is unquestionably raising the standard in athletics all over the country, is the opinion of Mr. Harrison.

When asked regarding the advisability of having so many state schools scattered about, Mr. Harrison said that he wonders if this is not dissipation of both financial and executive energy.

"Why," he asked, "could not all these state institutions be gathered under one head and in one place?"

Mr. Harrison, who is returning from northwest Canada, stopped in Seattle, where he addressed a gathering of Pennsylvania alumni. The title of provost, which he bears, corresponds to the office of president. When Benjamin Franklin founded the University of Pennsylvania in 1732, he suggested that the Scottish title of "provost" be given to the head of the institution, and this custom has since prevailed.

PEARY OFFERS TO SUBMIT HIS RECORDS

HIS BRIEFS WILL CONDEMN CLAIMS OF COOK.

Delays Making Records Public Because He Might Benefit Rival Explorer.

BATTLE HARBOR, Labrador, Sept. 16.—(Via Marconi Wireless to Cape Ray, N. F.) Commander Robert E. Peary today talked further concerning his dash to the North pole. He dwelt particularly upon the observations taken and the movements of Harry Whitney, the sportsman of New Haven, Conn., who has been described as the bearer of records substantiating Dr. Frederick A. C. Cook's claim to have reached the pole April 21, 1908.

"We took five observations prior to reaching the pole," Commander Peary said. "Two of them were made and worked out by the late Professor Ross Marvin, who prepared duplicate records in each case and duly signed the duplicate certificates. To guard against accident I took one set of these papers and Professor Marvin took the other.

"When within a distance of 135 miles from the pole the third observation was made by Captain Bartlett, who also signed the records and certificates in duplicate, he retaining one set and I the other. The fourth and fifth observations were made by myself, the last being taken five miles from the pole proper."

"Was there more than one observation taken at the pole and by whom?" the explorer was asked.

"There were several observations," he replied, "and I took them all myself. They all agreed. You must understand that the pole is a theoretical point without length, breadth or thickness. Its actual location depends on the accuracy of the instruments employed and the conditions under which the observations are taken."

"You have stated, Commander Peary,

DAILY DIET HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist

COMMON SALT VS. SALT IN FOODS.

Common salt should be used sparingly. The elements of salt, chlorine and sodium, are highly important in the economy of digestion and cell nutrition, but the crude, mineral salt serves only as an irritant, causing an excessive flow of saliva, which of course heightens the capacity for tasting whatever is in the mouth with it; but such a means of stimulating taste is both unnatural and unnecessary. Properly selected natural food with a natural appetite are the best conditions for the normal enjoyment of food. But all common salt must be eliminated through the kidneys whose delicate organism it irritates as indicated by the abnormal thirst following the eating of much salt.

Of course failure to drink enough water might be worse than eating much salt under certain circumstances. But wheat, nuts, lettuce, cabbage (uncooked always), milk, eggs, contain ample chlorine to form gastric fluid and ample sodium and in natural form.

LEAGUE SCORES IN LOCAL OPTION FIGHT

DRUGGIST F. N. ROGERS CONVICTED ON THREE COUNTS.

Big Victory for Antisaloon Forces in First Case Under the New Law.

In the first fight between the Colorado Springs Local Option league, represented by Dr. Geo. H. Lile and J. H. Ketchum, and local druggists, under the new local option law, the former scored a decided victory when F. N. Rogers, proprietor of the People's pharmacy was found guilty yesterday afternoon on three counts for the illegal sale of liquor.

Should the court decide that the second count is for a second offense, Rogers is in danger of a jail sentence of from 30 to 90 days and a fine of from $200 to $500 for this offense alone. The local option law provides a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $200 for the first offense or a jail sentence of not less than 10 days or more than 90 days, or both.

Rogers has 10 days in which to file a motion for a new hearing.

Members of the Local Option league are highly elated over their victory in the Rogers case. This case was considered by them as their weakest, since they were able to prove not more than 1.62 per cent alcohol in the liquor sold by Rogers.

Another information was filed against Adolph Fehringer yesterday in the district court, charging him with the illegal sale of liquor. One case against him will begin today. There are now 20 more liquor cases to come up for trial at this term of court.

Secretary E. H. Liles of the Local Option league, speaking in behalf of the league, said last night:

"We wish to express our appreciation for the very able work done by the district attorney's office. District Attorney Ferguson and his assistant, Mr. Purcell, have done everything in their power to assist us in our fight against the druggists who have been selling liquor. In fact, the district attorney's office brought the first information against Adolph Fehringer without our knowledge."

GET SEVERE SENTENCE

Webster and Clark, Who Tried to Rob the Cliff House, Are Given Long Term.

Peter Webster and Charles Clark yesterday afternoon pleaded guilty in the district court to charges of burglary and assault, and were sentenced to serve from 8 to 10 years in the state penitentiary. Webster and Clark attempted to burglarize the Cliff house in Manitou several weeks ago, and the latter was shot in the head by James Sharrow, the chief clerk. The two bullets are still in Clark's head, although he suffers none the worse for his injury.

WYOMING QUARANTINE MATERIALLY EXTENDED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The quarantine established by the department of agriculture in Wyoming to prevent the spread of the hip and leg disease in sheep, which became effective August 6, has been extended. It will include, besides all the counties of the northern half of the state that part of Fremont county north of the Wind River, and that part of Albany and Laramie counties north of the sixth standard parallel north.

TRAIN ROBBERS HOLD UP D. & R. G. TRAIN NEAR MALTA

POSSE PURSUES QUICKLY

Messenger Bravely Refuses to Open Car and Assailants Then Use Explosive.

LEADVILLE, Colo., Sept. 16.—A daring attempt to rob the second section of Denver and Rio Grande No. 5 passenger train was made about 11 o'clock tonight four miles east of Malta, a small station near this city. The express car was dynamited but according to the trainmen no booty was secured.

It is believed that the five men who were engaged in the hold-up crawled on the two engines of No. 5 at Malta. The train had proceeded but a short distance when two men crawled over the tender of each engine and compelled the engineers and firemen to march back to the express car.

Engineer Smith of the first engine was told to hammer on the door and order the express messenger to open it. The latter, however, refused to open the door, and a charge of dynamite was placed under it and the door blown open. Three of the robbers rushed in, covering the express messenger with their revolvers. He was ordered to open the safe, but said he could not. Several charges of dynamite were then placed under the safe but without result except to completely wreck the interior of car.

After firing a parting volley of shots the robbers disappeared in the darkness.

One of the trainmen in the meantime had reached Malta and Sheriff Campbell with a posse at once started for the scene.

It is rumored that the safe contained a very large sum of money, but this cannot be confirmed.

PUEBLO, Colo., Sept. 17.—The second section of D. & R. G. train No. 5, which was held up last night, left Pueblo yesterday evening. Dan Shea of Denver, was the express messenger in charge of the car.

According to local express men the second section of No. 5 would not be carrying any large sums of money unless a special shipment was made. Train No. 1 carries the greater part of the valuable express matter and the first section of No. 5 would be liable to have anything which did not go west on No. 1.

CAPTAIN BARTLETT TO SEEK SOUTH POLE

ARCTIC OCEAN MORE THAN TWO MILES DEEP.

Peary Landed Supplies for Dr. Cook at Etah, August 17, 1908.

BATTLE HARBOR, Labrador, Sept. 16.—Captain Bartlett intends to go to Cornell university to study civil engineering. He would like to go to the South pole.

"I believe," he said today, "that Peary's methods would produce the best results in the Antarctic. In following the commander over the polar ice we regarded him with absolute faith. Our determination and our cry was, 'He must get to the pole,' and every man of us did his utmost to assist Peary to obtain the success which we believed he was bound to achieve.

"After parting company with Peary I did not immediately turn back, but continued onward for six miles to allow for the ice movement. Then with two Eskimos, one sled and 18 dogs I turned south and started on the homeward journey, sad at heart, that it was not my fortune to be able to go on north."

Captain Bartlett said that one of his soundings well on toward the pole disclosed a depth of 2,900 fathoms without bottom. At another, 1,181 fathoms were let down and bottom was not reached. In still another, mad from the sea floor was brought up at 1,000 fathoms, and will be subjected to microscopic examination.

Asked at what point farthest north he had seen the Bible, Captain Bartlett said that there may have been a copy on the Roosevelt, but divine service was not held on board. No missionaries were among the north Greenland tribe, who, he said, have never [illegible]

Magnate Had Previously Provided Handsomely for All His Children.

SMALL INHERITANCE TAX

Magnificent Mansion on Which $2,000,000 Has Been Expended Will Be Completed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—A hundred words, weighted each with approximately one million dollars and containing in their entirety the last statement of E. H. Harriman, given out today, makes his widow, Mary Averell Harriman, one of the wealthiest women in the world. It is perhaps the briefest will on record for the disposal of an estate of such magnitude. All his property is left to Mrs. Harriman.

Wall Street estimates that Mrs. Harriman will inherit in realty and personal property between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000. Mr. Harriman's private fortune is supposed to have been greater than this by many millions, but there is reason to believe that his unmarried daughters, Mary and Carol; his married daughter, Mrs. Robert Livingstone Gerry, and his two sons, William Averell and Roland, a boy of 14, and his surviving sister, Mrs. Simons, and other relatives have all been substantially provided for by gifts out of hand and trust funds set aside by Mr. Harriman in his life time.

Will Drawn by Peabody.

The will is dated June 8, 1909, and is witnessed by Charles A. Peabody, president of the Mutual Life Insurance company, who drew it, and C. C. Tegethoff.

Mr. Peabody was Mr. Harriman's close personal friend. He relinquished a law practice estimated as worth $100,000 a year to assume at a smaller salary the executive direction of a company in which Mr. Harriman was heavily interested. Mr. Tegethoff was Mr. Harriman's personal secretary.

On Mrs. Harriman now will rest the management of the 43,000 acres of woodland, pasture land and fertile black bottoms in the Ramapo valley and on Tower hill; the completion of the great house on which Mr. Harriman already had lavished two million dollars, and those plans of public benefaction—parks and forest reservations—which it is known that Mr. Harriman cherished, though he makes no mention of them in his will.

World's Wealthiest Widow.

If the estate measures up to expectation, Mrs. Harriman is the wealthiest woman in the world. Mrs. Hetty Green's holdings have been estimated at $40,000,000, those of Mrs. Frederick Courtland Penfield at $80,000,000, and those of Mrs. Russell Sage at a like amount.

The will was filed today with the surrogate of Orange county, New York, at Goshen. Not until an appraiser is appointed will there be an official valuation of the estate.

Mr. Harriman, by making no bequests to children or relatives, avoided the large share of the enormous inheritance tax, which, under the laws of New York, would otherwise be imposed. Mrs. Harriman's dower rights are subject to no tax whatever, and the remaining two-thirds of the estate to a tax of only 1 per cent, as against a graded classification which in some instances runs to 5 per cent.

CAUGHT IN ROPES BOY HANGS FROM BALLOON

FRANKFORT, Sept. 16.—In an ascension of the Parseval dirigible balloon a boy became entangled in the loose rigging and was carried aloft swinging by the legs. The ship had attained an altitude of 600 feet before the pilot could check its course and bring it back to the ground. When the boy was released he was insensible.

HARRIMAN'S ENTIRE ESTATE GOES TO WIDOW

Will Is Brief and Without Technical Details of Any Kind.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—All of Edward H. Harriman's property, real and personal, is bequeathed without restriction of any sort to the widow, Mrs. W. Harriman. The will was filed in Goshen, N. Y., this afternoon, but was made public in the city. It is an extremely brief document, dated June 8, 1909, and reads as follows:

I, Edward H. Harriman, of Arden, in the state of New York, do make, publish and declare this as and for my last will and testament, that is to say:

I give, devise and bequeath all of my property, real and personal, of every kind and nature, to my wife, Mary W. Harriman, to be [illegible] forever, and I do [illegible] against the said [illegible] W. Harriman to be the executrix of this will.

In witness [illegible] I have hereunto set my hand and seal this [illegible] day of June, in the year [illegible] and nine.

(Signed) [illegible]

CHILD TESTIFIES TO HER FATHER'S INNOCENCE

Declares She Saw Her Mother Take Poison Which Caused Her Death.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 16—The 12-year-old daughter of Harper E Bennett, the real estate man on trial for the murder of his wife, gave sensational testimony in defense of her father when she took the stand today.

The little girl testified in effect that her mother had put the poison in the beer which both Bennett and his wife drank, resulting it was alleged, in the latter's death and Bennett's serious illness. Further, the child said that she had frequently heard her mother threaten to kill herself. She had put her arms around her mother and begged her not to do it. Then her mother said, she testified, that she would not poison herself until Mr. Bennett was there to see her do it.

Regarding what occurred on the night of her mother's death the daughter testified:

"Mamma took a little blue paper bound with a rubber band and went into the pantry and slammed the door. When she came out she had two glasses of beer. She gave papa one of them and kept one herself. Papa drank his right off, but mamma only sipped hers."

This, the defense will contend, explained how there came to be strychnine in Mrs Bennett's stomach.

SURGEON SAYS SUTTON WAS NOT A SUICIDE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—Disagreeing with Surgeon Raymond Spears who declared that the appearance of the body of Lieutenant James N Sutton of the Marine corps whose death at Annapolis two years ago has recently been the subject of investigation, indicated that suicide was possible, Dr George Tulley Vaughan who also attended the autopsy on the body, declared tonight that there were no indications [illegible] the charge of the pistol which killed him.

Dr Vaughan insists that the [illegible] hole was [illegible] cut and that powder marks and bruises were not shown as would have been the case had the pistol been fired at close range.

"His examination led Dr. Vaughan to believe that Sutton did not die by his own hand. His full report of the autopsy is in the hands of Henry E. Davis, counsel for Mrs Sutton. Mr. Davis expects to make a statement regarding the report tomorrow.

BANKERS OPPOSE POSTAL SAVING PLAN

NATIONAL BANKS TO ADD SAVINGS DEPARTMENT.

Guranty Deposit Not Favored by Financiers, Who Dispute Oklahoma Officers

CHICAGO, Sept. 16—Not a voice was raised today in defense of the postal savings bank plan in the sessions of the American Bankers association convention, nor was there a word uttered in favor of a guaranty deposit for state or national banks.

In formal reports, in speeches, and in impromptu remarks both ideas were repeatedly scored by the bankers who were apparently of one mind in opposing the two remedies offered for the relief of financial conditions.

In the savings bank section Henry S Henschen of Chicago attacked the postal savings banks, by declaring that if the good of the country demanded that the experience of trusted and intelligent men as custodians of the people's savings be disregarded, and the custodianship turned over to third and fourth class postmasters the bankers would acquiesce, but that if the welfare of the country did not demand such action, the bankers would protest in no uncertain tones.

President G M Reynolds prophesied that within a year there would be such a revision of the national banking laws as would permit national banks to accept savings deposits.

Comment was made by several bankers on the bank guaranty law and its effect in Oklahoma, in direct contradiction to the practices of State Supervisor Young of Oklahoma, at the meeting of bank supervisors early in the week.

The savings bank section elected Wm R. Greere, of Cleveland, as president.

BALLINGER'S COURSE IN COAL CASES UPHELD

His Accuser, Glavis, Declines to Discuss Matter Until He Is Released From Office.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 16.—L. R. Glavis, chief of the field division of the general land office, with headquarters at Seattle, whose dismissal has been approved by President Taft after an investigation of charges filed against Secretary of the Interior Ballinger by Glavis, said today:

"The rule which prohibits me from discussing this is as much in force today as it was when you first asked me for a statement of the work of this office regarding the Alaska coal cases."

Mr Glavis maintained that he could give out no statement, at least until his connection with the land office ends. He said he had received no telegraphic information regarding the President's letter to Secretary Ballinger.

H. C Heney, the railroad builder, who is interested in the Cunningham coal land claims, said:

"When Judge Ballinger left the office of land commissioner we consulted him as a lawyer regarding the coal cases. There was nothing wrong about that. When he went into the cabinet he was not asked to have any further dealings with the men interested in the coal lands. We were notified that he would have no further relations with those interested in the properties. Glavis had appropriated some of the papers of the company, and his conduct now has been properly rewarded."

C J Smith, another of the coal land claimants, said:

"Judge Ballinger's record was absolutely clean in the Alaska coal land cases. Those who were in possession of the facts knew this, and never feared that the charges against him would carry weight."

The summary removal of Mr Glavis was in accordance with authority given Secretary Ballinger in a letter from President Taft, who, in directing the dismissal vindicated Secretary Ballinger and other officials of the interior departments of the charges brought against them by Glavis in connection with the so-called Cunningham group of coal land cases in Alaska.

No explanation was offered for the permanent dismissal of Glavis, it having been stated at the department early in the day that the formal order in the case probably would be issued in a day or two.

AMERICAN STEEL STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK

PITTSBURG, Sept. 16—With the American flag at the head of their column American workmen employed at the Pressed Steel Car plant in Schoenville will fall in line tomorrow and march to the works.

Since the American and foreign strikers have split the Americans have decided to return to work as they are satisfied with conditions since the strike was declared off last week.

Throughout the strike district the Americans made it known to foreign strikers today that if insult were offered to the flag the offender would be shot dead. It is accepted that a majority of the marchers in the unique labor parade will go armed.

The announcement that the Americans will return to work was met with defiance from the foreign strikers who threaten to stop all attempts to resume work inside the stockade.

CHINA SUPPRESSES PAPERS

Pekin Journals Too Freely Discussed Japan's Military Intentions and the Treaty.

PEKIN, Sept. 18—Acting upon the recommendation of the foreign board, the regent issued a mandate yesterday closing up two of the ablest Chinese newspapers in Pekin, the Kuopac and the Tatungpac.

This action was taken because the papers published telegrams in which the governor of Kirin discussed Japan's military intentions in connection with opening Kirin province and the exploration of the Chientao territory in accordance with the terms of the agreement recently signed by China and Japan. The government also requested protection for the province from a Japanese invasion and a future war between Russia and Japan.

A section of the Chinese press is advocating a boycott of Japan on account of the agreement signed by Japan and China.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON MAY SURVIVE OPERATION

ROCHESTER, Minn., Sept. 16—Saved when very near dead at St Mary's hospital early today, Governor Johnson who was operated on yesterday passed a fair [illegible] day for one so ill.

Tonight, it is believed will determine whether he will recover, as doctors expect the crisis [illegible] before dawn. Should [illegible] this crisis there will be definite basis for hope that he will recover, although he will not be out of danger for several days.

Early in the day the governor's condition was such that frequent saline injection were administered to stimulate the almost-imperceptible pulse.

The first official bulletin issued by Dr. William J Mayo said the patient had rallied, and that his condition was satisfactory. Other bulletins tended to confirm this, except one at noon, which stated that the governor was suffering much pain.

The governor complained little—in fact it was said that he displayed great hopefulness and endurance. The doctors spoke of his wonderful "nerve," and said that he joked freely with them about his condition. This evening Dr W J Mayo issued the following bulletin:

Governor Johnson's condition is not so good. He is more restless and suffers considerably. His pulse is 118 and temperature 99.8-10. There is a decided rise in temperature and pulse but the governor's condition is not yet alarming.

ROCHESTER, Minn., Sept 17—Governor Johnson's condition early this morning showed decided improvement, and his physicians are much encouraged over the outlook for his recovery. The governor has shown a gradual improvement during the last 24 hours.

Shortly after midnight Dr McNevin issued the following bulletin:

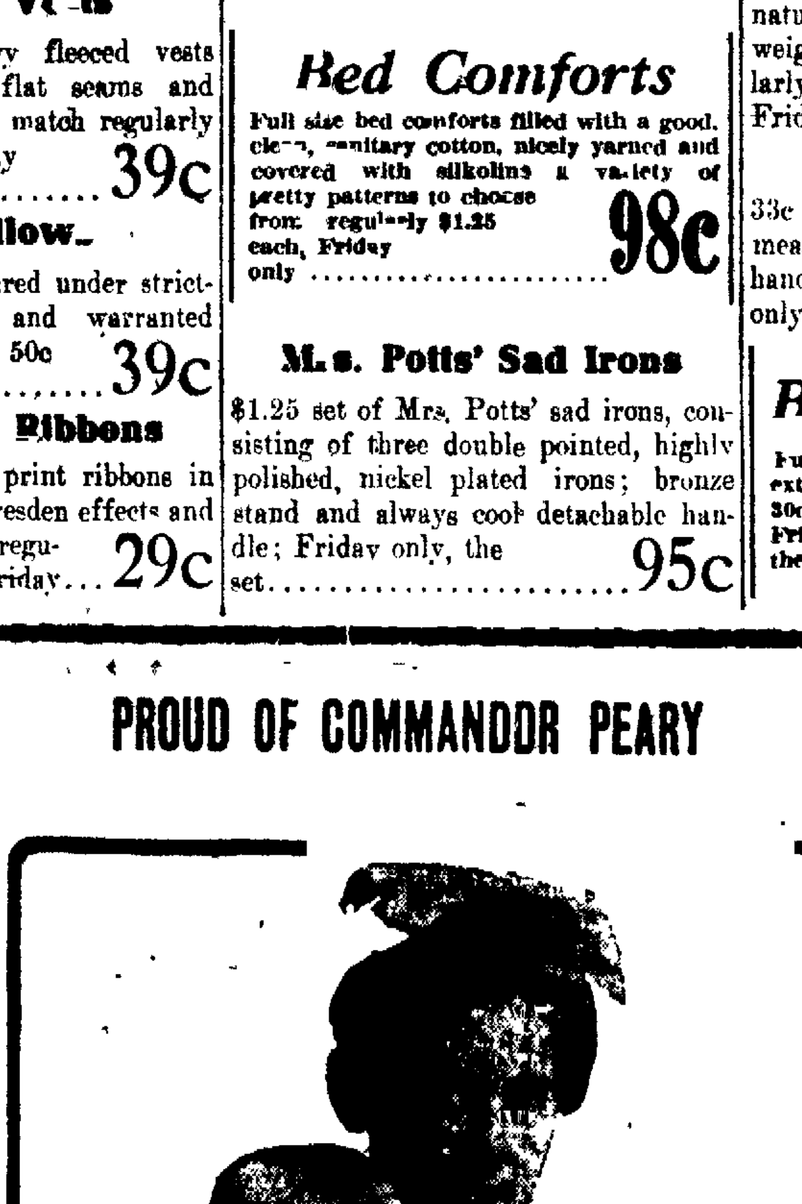

The governor had a slight attack of nausea at 12:30 and then went to sleep. He has been asleep almost continuously since 10:45 p m. His condition is excellent. He has taken no opiates tonight nor did he take any last night except one-sixth of a grain of morphine three hours after the operation. His pulse is 110 and his temperature stationary at 99 4-10."

christianized, and never heard of a Bible.

George Borup, photographer of the expedition, has a thousand negatives.

The Roosevelt is being painted, and it is thought she will be ready to start tomorrow for Sydney.

Commander Robert E. Peary landed two men at Etah with supplies for Dr. Cook on August 17, 1908, according to a letter made public today, which he wrote on that day to the superintendent of the coast and geodetic survey.

In his letter Peary reviewed his voyage from Sydney, from which port the Roosevelt sailed on July 17, until the time he left Etah on the day that he landed the men and supplies.

"Eskimos and dogs were taken on here, and the ship's tanks filled with water from the glacier," said the letter. "We then steamed north to North Star bay, where I found the Erik. Taking on more Eskimos and dogs, the ships steamed in company to the west end of Northumberland island, where I boarded the Erik to visit the settlements at the head of Inglefield gulf, while the Roosevelt proceeded direct to Etah to overhaul and trim ship for ice.

"I rejoined the Roosevelt with the Erik, August 11, with additional Eskimos and dogs and some thirty-five walrus. All the dogs were landed on ah island in Etahfiord, and the Roosevelt was coaled from the Erik. Coal was landed for the return trip and two men were landed with supplies for the relief of Dr. Cook."

that a copy of your records and polar observations was wrapped in a piece of a silk American flag and deposited in an ice cavity at the pole; did any person witness this act?"

To this question Commander Peary declined to make any answer at present. Continuing, Peary said that Dr. Cook was expected by the world to submit to an impartial tribunal or board of arbitration a revised and authentic signed statement of his alleged discovery of the pole. Dr. Cook soon would reach the United States, Commander Peary said, and he was glad at the prospect of the matter being submitted for consideration at an early date. It should be done inside of a couple of weeks, and when it was done, the commander declared, he was prepared to turn over to the board of arbitration, to the public and to scientific bodies an array of testimony which would disprove Dr. Cook's claim for all time.

Continuing, the explorer said that he had stated in a private message to a friend that Dr. Cook had given the world a "gold brick." This message had been allowed to leak out, and while he would have preferred a more elegant phrase, he will now let the words stand because they were at least emphatic.

Will Submit Records Later.

The explorer said that he would turn over to a competent tribunal and the public certified copies of his own observations made on his trip to the pole, with all other information bearing thereon. Peary does not care to exhibit these records at the present time, for the reason that the information contained therein, if divulged in advance of the placing on file of Dr. Cook's authentic and definite statement, might be of advantage to the Cook partisans. It is reported here that Commander Peary's briefs will make sensational statements, and that a portion of his document was prepared as long ago as the early months of 1908, when letters were received from Dr. Cook in Greenland giving notice that he intended to make a dash for the pole.

Asked how Harry Whitney happened to remain in the north, Commander Peary said Whitney was one of a party of sportsmen who went as passengers on board the steamer Erik. The party included Whitney, W. Norton of New York, a man named Harned and G. J. Crafts of Washington, who came for the purpose of taking magnetic observations for Dr. Bauer, head of the department of terrestrial magnetism for the Carnegie institute at Washington.

At Etah, where it was determined to land a party and supplies for the relief of Dr. Cook, particularly in view of the fact that Rudolph Francke was being invalided home, Whitney asked if he might remain on the station to hunt walrus and polar bear in the spring. This was decided on. In order to provide against the contingency of the Roosevelt not coming down from the north in the summer of 1909, in which event he would be obliged to remain in the Arctic over two years, Mr. Whitney made arrangements for a ship to come up for him this summer.

Both Reached Pole.

ROME, Sept. 16.—Professor Milosevich, director of the Royal observatory, today expressed his firm belief that both Dr. Cook and Commander Peary reached the pole. He strongly rejects the supposition that either is lying.

"A man of science," he said, "who has consecrated his entire life to spring from jealous nature her infant secrets would not lie. Nansen is the only one who could put an end to the doubts regarding Dr. Cook. If Nansen did not speak, Sverdrup spoke in his stead, saying he believed Cook which means that is also Nansen's opinion.

"I am sure that I do not err in affirming that Peary himself in his secret soul thinks that he was not the first to reach the pole."

Congratulates Peary.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—When Herbert L. Bridgman, secretary and treasurer of the Peary Arctic club, returned today from Sydney, N. S., he found awaiting him a number of cablegrams of congratulations to Commander Peary, among which was the following, dated Uccle, Belgium, September 8:

"Peary: International Polar commission addresses sincerest congratulations to their members.

"CAGNI,
"NORDENSKJIOLD,
"LECOINTE."

Uccle is the seat of the royal Belgian observatory, of which M. Lecointe is the director. Captain Umberto Cagni, leader of the Duc D'Abruzzi's polar expedition, is president of the International Polar commission. Dr. Nordenskjiold is its vice president, and has headed a Swedish expedition into the Antartic, while M. Lecointe is its secretary.

Congratulatory telegrams were also received from the Scottish Geographical society, the General Societe Geographique of Paris, and the Societa Geographica Italiana of Rome.

A meeting of the Peary Arctic club will be held next week to decide whether the club will launch a formal campaign in behalf of Peary's claim as sole discoverer of the pole.

The plan the club will be asked to pass upon embraces a publicity campaign, including the use of advertising space in newspapers and a searching investigation of Cook's exploit in climbing Mount McKinley.

Money may be appropriated to send an expedition to Etah to take the testimony of Eskimo witnesses.

STANDS BY HER HUSBAND

MR. AND MRS. DWIGHT FORTNER.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 15. Mrs. Dwight Fortner is standing bravely by her husband, who is charged with embezzlement and who is confined in jail here awaiting trial. Mrs. Fortner has informed him she will do all in her power to assist him. She is spending the summer in Wisconsin and has not yet returned home.

It will be remembered that sensational charges of embezzlement preferred against Dwight Fortner following his romantic marriage to the beautiful St. Louis society girl. The whole affair has stirred St. Louis social circles to the depths owing to the popularity of Fortner.

TAFT PRAISES UNION LABOR

wages would be much lower. It is true that in the end they would probably be fixed by the law of supply and demand, but generally before this law manifests itself, there is a period in which labor, if organized and acting together, can compel the employer promptly to recognize the change of conditions and advance wages to meet a rising market and an increase in profits, and on the other hand can delay the too quick impulse of the employer facing a less prosperous future to economize by reducing wages.

There is a higher standard of living among American laborers than in any country in the world, and while there doubtless have been a good many other reasons for this, certainly the effect of the organization of labor has been to maintain a steady and high rate of wages, making such a standard of living possible. Nothing I have said or shall say should be construed into an attitude of criticism against, or unfriendly to the working man who for any reasons do not join unions. Their right to labor for such wages as they choose to accept is sound, and any lawless invasion of that right can not be too severely condemned. All advantages of trades unionism, great as they are, can not weigh a feather in the scale against the right of any man lawfully seeking employment to work for whom and at what price he will. And I say this with all the emphasis possible, even though, were I a workingman, I should probably deem it wise to join a union for the reasons given.

The effect of organized labor on such abuses as the employment of child labor, the exposure of laborers to undue risk in dangerous employments, the continuance of unjust rules of law exempting employers from liability for accidents to laborers, has been direct, immediate, and useful, and such reforms in these matters as have taken place would probably be long delayed but for the energetic agitation of the questions by representatives of organized labor.

When organized labor permits itself to sympathize with violent methods, with breaches of the law, with boycotts and other methods of undue duress, it is not entitled to our sympathy. But it is not to be expected that such organizations shall be perfect, and that they may not at all times, and in particular cases, show defective tendencies that ought to be corrected.

One defect which has been pointed out has been the disposition of a majority of members in labor unions to reduce the compensation of all men engaged in a particular trade to a dead level, and to fail to recognize the difference between the highly skilled and industrious workman and the one only less skilled and less industrious. I think there is a movement among trades unions to correct this leveling tendency, and nothing could strengthen the movement more than the adoption of some plan by which there should remain among union workmen the impetus and motive to be found in greater reward for greater skill and greater industry.

Courts Need Reforming.

Our friends of the great unions at times complain of our courts, more perhaps because of the decisions in injunction cases than for anything else, I already have referred to this particular phase of litigation in which they have an interest, but when the subject of the courts is mentioned it suggests to me a larger field for complaint and reform in which all citizens are interested and have a right to be heard.

There is no subject upon which I feel so deeply as upon the necessity for reform in the administration of both civil and criminal law.

To sum it all up in one phrase, the difficulty in both is undue delay. It is not too much to say that the administration of criminal law in this country is a disgrace to our civilization, and that the prevalence of crime and fraud, which here is greatly in excess of that in the European countries, is due largely to the failure of the law and its administrators to bring criminals to justice. I am sure this failure is not due to corruption of officials. It is chiefly due to the system against which it is impossible for an earnest prosecutor and an efficient judge to struggle.

Reform in our criminal procedure is not the only reform we ought to have in our courts. On the civil side of the courts there is undue delay and this always works for the benefit of the man with the longest purse. The employment of lawyers and the payment of costs all become more expensive as the litigation is extended.

What the Poor Man Needs.

What the poor man needs is a prompt decision of his case, and by limiting appeals in cases involving small amounts of money so that there shall be a final decision in the lower court, an opportunity is given to the poor litigant to secure a judgment in time to enjoy it, and not after he has exhausted all his resources in litigating to the supreme court.

I am a lawyer and admire my profession, but I must admit we have had too many lawyers in legislating on legal procedure, and they have been prone to think that litigants were made for the purpose of furnishing business to courts and lawyers and not courts and lawyers for the benefit of the people and litigants. More than this, I am bound to say that in the matter of reducing the cost of litigation and indeed, the time of it, Congress and the federal courts have not set a good example.

Abolish Fee System.

I would abolish altogether the system of payment of court officers by fees. The fee system may properly be continued for the reimbursement of the public treasury by litigants, especially interested, but the fees ought to be reduced to the lowest point, and the motive for increasing the expense of litigation that arises from the payment of the compensation out of fees to court officers should be removed.

Of all the questions before the American people I regard no one as more important than improvement of the administration of justice. We must make it so the poor man will have as nearly as possible an equal opportunity in litigating as the rich man and under present conditions, as ashamed as we may be of it, this is not the fact.

MEXICO CELEBRATES HER INDEPENDENCE

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 16.—The ninty-ninth anniversary of the independence of Mexico was celebrated throughout the republic today with much enthusiasm. In the capital a great military parade in which President Diaz participated was held.

Congress assembled tonight. President Diaz read his annual message. Referring to the recent political acts, the president said:

"In recent months there has been a perceptible political movement preparatory to the election of federal officers, which is to take place next year. It is certainly praiseworthy that the Mexican people show each time a greater interest in the exercise of their electoral right, as this is a pledge that in designating their future officials they will guarantee those conquests which the republic has made under the influence of peace.

"Unfortunately not all the manifestations of the electoral propaganda have kept within peaceful limits of the laws and, initiated by agitators prompted by their own personal interests, certain disorders have occurred. The government, whose principal duty it is to preserve public order, will not permit that this be disturbed, even though to accomplish the object it may be necessary to employ energetic measures."

Mexico has an American population of 20,000, constantly increasing. Their wants alone constitute a good-sized trade.

CLIFFORD W. ROE

CLIFFORD G. ROE,

Assistant State's Attorney of Chicago, and a Leader in the Fight Against White Slavery.

The white slave traffic, in one form or another, is older than Babylon, but it has remained for the present age to see it systematized. Clifford G. Roe, Chicago's youngest assistant state's attorney, is the first champion to enter the field to combat this system of slavery and already he has accomplished much in the way of organizing the forces of society against the evil.

Mr. Roe has ideas of his own which he gained from his experience in the court room, about the white slave traffic, and he has made up his mind that he is going to let the world know about them. So far the world has shown itself fairly willing to listen to him, and has even done him the honor to discuss his ideas, just a little bothered perhaps that anyone should stir it up so vigorously.

Mr. Roe is 34 years old and looks 10 years younger. He is energetic, earnest, and has all the enthusiasm of the young man to whom life is bristling with opportunities. In figure he is short and slight, and walks with peculiar springiness, which is in itself typical of the innate energy of the man. His face is mobile and expressive of a quick intelligence, while he is the possessor of an engaging smile, which breaks out at unexpected moments.

Mr. Roe was born on an Indiana farm, but his parents brought him to Chicago when he was three years old and he was educated in the public schools of that city and afterward took two degrees at the University of Michigan.

Through his warfare against the white slave traffic he is known throughout the nation. He has invaded churches, public halls and all places where and [illegible] will be found in our laboratories.

What the Press Agents Say

"THE THIRD DEGREE."

Undoubtedly the play of the year, is Charles Klein's sensational success, "The Third Degree," which Henry B. Harris has scheduled for presentation here at the Opera House shortly.

"The Third Degree" is strikingly illuminative of the vicissitudes of life in the crowded and crime-sodden city of New York. It challenges the vicious police methods of extorting derogatory confessions from poor and unprotected victims of their relentless pursuit—whether they be guilty or not. A confession once made, regardless of the suspect's innocence, often leads to a gross miscarriage of justice. Herein lies the author's claim to recognition. His story has a real basis. While he was on the quay at Marseilles, France, waiting for the steamer to carry him to Egypt, he read an account of a case in a New York paper that furnished him his inspiration for "The Third Degree." In the original case the principal actor suffered the extreme penalty in Joliet prison before the real criminal was apprehended and voluntarily confessed to the crime, which the innocent man had paid with his life. From a social and psychological point of view "The Third Degree" commands close attention. It unfolds a romance of a poor and virtuous girl with the scion of an old and well-to-do Knickerbocker family. The son of this family married the girl while he was a student at Yale, and was consequently disinherited by his proud and aristocratic father.

Henry B. Harris, under whose direction the play will be seen here, provided the following sterling cast: Paul Everton, Fernanda Eliscu, Marguerite Drew, E. A. Eberle, Alfred Moore, A. H. Symmons, Francis Bonn, Ralph Ramsay and H. H. Forseman.

MISS BILLIE BURKE IN "LOVE WATCHES."

Miss Billie Burke comes to the Opera House on Monday evening, September 20, in "Love Watches." Miss Burke is now making her first transcontinental tour as a star. She was nearly that when she made the trip season before last as John Drew's leading woman in "My Wife." She went the other 16 seconds last autumn, when Charles Frohman presented her in "Love Watches," at the Lyceum theater in New York. Since then she has been reckoned right up at the pole along with Maude Adams and Ethel Barrymore, and all the other Frohman pole discoverers.

Miss Burke owes her rapid rise in her chosen profession to the fascinating powers of an unusually charming personality. She has histrionic ability, too—plenty of it—but it is that mysterious thing called "Charm," which some actresses have and some haven't, and which Miss Burke has in double and treble measure, that in two short seasons has won her a popularity that others have worked a lifetime to acquire and then failed. And "Love Watches," they say, is just the play to exhibit this remarkable quality in full force.

Written by two French playwrights, MM. de Flers and de Caillavet, and adapted into English by Miss Gladys Unger, the play tells a pretty story of an impulsive, wayward little French girl, who loves a young man, tells him so and marries him. Then, learning that he has been a flirt in his recent bachelor days, her jealousy is aroused and she threatens that if he flirts again she will go straightway and do likewise. How she tries to make good her threat, when she thinks her husband has deceived her, and how she fails in her attempt and rushes back to her husband's arms, more in love with him than ever, is all told in a delightful way by the playwrights, and acted still more delightfully by Miss Burke and her supporting company.

Miss Burke's company, by the way, is an exceptionally good one, including Vernon Steele, an English actor who has come to America especially to play the husband in this piece; Ernest Lawford, W. H. Crompton, Stanley Dark, Maude Odell, Kate Meek and Muriel Ashwynne.

Seats are now selling for this production. Prices 50c, $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00.

ALBINI, AT THE MAJESTIC, MYSTIFIES THOUSANDS

It does not detract a whit from the fame of the world-known and popular Hermann, deceased, to say that Albini, appearing this week at the Majestic theater, is the greatest all around magician and necromancer the stage has ever produced.

To begin with, Albini absolutely reverses the methods used by Hermann instead of cloaking his transformations in heavy, light defying draperies he strips his stage destitute of everything including scenery and has every light in the theater and upon the stage shining to its full capacity during his entire performance.

Tricks with cards that were once sufficient to draw big audiences, he does with such ease and perfection as to make them seem merely child's play. Slate writing to him is simple. His plate glass trunk trick is bewildering, and his finale number, the "Oriental Bridal Chamber," is beyond description.

The Prentice troupe of five comedy acrobats, present a whirlwind performance of daring and funny somersaults, falls, casts and twisters that is not excelled in vaudeville. Their 20 minutes upon the stage is one continuous round of "touch and go," just the lively style which is so popular with Majestic audiences.

MOTHER SEEKS DEATH WHEN CHILD IS KIDNAPED

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16.—The suicide of a Chinese woman by hanging was an unusual tragedy reported to the coroner today. Dong Chin She, who was married to Dong Yuck, a wealthy merchant, two years ago, was discovered by relatives hanging to a rafter over her bed.

According to reluctant admissions obtained in Chinatown by the police, the woman's husband had declared that she was not giving her child proper attention, and had twice ordered the boy given into the care of other persons. The mother refused, and two days ago the infant was kidnaped. Since that time the mother had been inconsolable.

NANAIMO WIFE ACCUSED OF MURDER

NANAIMO, B. C., Sept. 16.—Mrs. Gus Carlson, whose husband was murdered several nights ago, was arrested last night after the inquest. Mrs. Carlson has maintained that her husband was murdered by burglars in the sitting room of the house, the burglars afterwards gagging her and escaping with the money. The police discovered blood stained pillow slips on the bed and hidden in a sack in the house which Mrs. Carlson identified as belonging to her. She is unable to account for the blood stains.

COLLEGE FLAG RUSH TODAY

Freshies and Sophs Will Struggle for Supremacy on Campus Stag Reception Tomorrow.

The nonacademic side of student life at Colorado College will begin this afternoon at 4 o'clock on the campus in front of Cutler Academy with the annual flag rush between the sophomore and freshman classes. A committee of men from the upper classes will nail the flag to the pole at a height of about 15 feet from the ground. The scrimmage will last for 15 minutes, umpires from the upper classes deciding who is winner.

Tomorrow night the annual stag reception will be held. This is a reception that no student of the college likes to miss. There will be rope-pulling contests, boxing, wrestling and a tug of war, followed by refreshments.

These contests represent a phase of modern college life which is a great improvement over conditions that prevailed in the college days of years ago. They are outgrowths of the pernicious system of hazing. In the days gone by, the suffering freshman was subjected to all sorts of indignities at the hands of the sophomore. Of late years, hazing has given way to athletic contests under the control of the upper classes. The old system bred hard feeling, and often led to the gravest abuses, the new system cultivates a manly spirit of rivalry, and is one of those phases of college life which make college days so dear to the hearts of our youth.

The annual reception of the Christian associations will be held in Bemis hall this evening at 8 o'clock. At this reception all new students will be presented to President and Mrs. Slocum.

CONCERT WELL RECEIVED

Nelson-Persinger Recital at Opera House Attended by Many Music Lovers.

The Nelson-Persinger recital was given at the Opera House last evening under the auspices of the Colorado Springs Musical club. This concert marked the first public appearance in this city of these two musicians since their return from abroad. The rousing welcome which the young people received, and the distinct appreciation of their work by the audience showed that Colorado Springs music lovers are not foolishly prejudiced against local talent and know real art whenever and wherever heard.

Miss Georgina Nelson, pianist, has much of the masculine quality in her playing, an unusual thing for a woman. This does not mean that she lacks the effeminate qualities, but that she adds to the usual feminine characteristics, a strength and virility seldom heard even among the best of the women pianists. She has a fine sense of tonal shades and colors. Her phrasing is most intelligently done, with much feeling and appreciation of the composer's ideas. Her tone is generally clear and beautiful, and her technic excellent. Her interpretations show much understanding, and will undoubtedly grow as her work matures and she becomes more settled.

Louis Persinger has a rather small tone, but it is of a smooth, rich quality, expressive and beautiful. His technic is finished, and he has accomplished that most difficult art of subduing technic to interpretation, a thing which distinguishes an artist from a mere player. His playing of the opening movement of the Handel sonata in E major was most pleasing, and he did the Wieniawski concerto in D minor, excellently. His interpretation of Saint-Saens' "The Swan," Dvorak's "Humoresque" and McDowell's "To a Wild Rose" were most delightful. The latter, a plaintive, simple air, fragrant as the wild rose, was played with much depth of feeling and appreciation for the simple, tender and most pathetic message the composer has put into the melody. Persinger's style of playing is best expressed in such numbers as "The Swan," "Humoresque," and "To a Wild Rose." Evidently he knows it, for his program was arranged to include mostly this style of music. Lovely as are these compositions, too much of this delicate rose-colored and ethereal music is like too much of rich sweetmeats. Persinger should guard against letting his enthusiasm run away with him in this respect.

The recital closed with Chopin's concerto in F minor for two pianos. It was most enthusiastically received, and brought the program to a most artistic end.

ENLARGE COLORADO SPRINGS BRANCH

FOLK AND CO. TO COMPILE ALL WORK HERE.

Will Incorporate and Employ Large Force. F. W. Sudbury to Be Local Manager.

R. L. Folk and company, publishers of city and other directories in many of the leading western states, will incorporate under the laws of Colorado shortly, and will enlarge the present branch offices in the Hagerman building. F. W. Sudburry will be local manager. W. P. Cooper, secretary-treasurer of the Detroit, Mich., branch, and manager of the western branch with offices in Salt Lake City, was in this city this week making arrangements for the enlargement of the local branch.

The opening of a big branch office in Colorado Springs will mean that all directories and books published by the company will be compiled in the local offices. This will necessitate a large office force to do the preparatory work, and local printing and bookbinding firms will be given a better opportunity to make bids on the work.

Among the books now published by R. L. Folk and company are the city directories of Colorado Springs, Colorado City and Manitou, Pueblo, Trinidad and Las Animas county, Grand Junction and Mesa county, Salida and Chafee county. Th Cheyenne, Wyo., directory will also probably be handled through the Colorado Springs office. The already complete directory of libraries will likely be enlarged. The present local offices of R. L. Polk and company are located with the Giles Mercantile agency.

The first directories of Colorado Springs were published by H. H. Raper and company in 1880, with a second edition in 1883. S. N. Francis then published the directory for several years. The Out West Printing and Stationery company took up the work for a few years, and put out a directory biennially until 1900, when the Giles Mercantile agency published an annual book for four years. Since 1904, R. L. Polk and company have published the directory.

Why Are We Stronger?

The old Greeks and Romans were great admirers of health and strength; their pictures and statuary made the muscles of the men stand out like cords.

As a matter of fact we have athletes and strong men who feed on fine strength making food such as Quaker Scotch Oats that would win in any contest with the old Roman or Greek champions. 16

It's a matter of food. The finest food for making strength of bone, muscle and nerve is fine oatmeal. Quaker Scotch Oats is the best because it is pure, no husks or stems or black specks. Farmers' wives are finding that by feeding the farm hands plentifully on Quaker Scotch Oats they get the best results in work and economy. If you are conservative in the strength buy the regular size packages; if not at the store buy the large family package.

TERRORS MAY PLAY AT BUTTE—TIGERS TODAY

With E. A. Rosenfelt, a former Princeton football star, and Lewis Carpenter, center for Trinity a few years ago, who have volunteered their services, in charge, the Colorado College Tigers begin active work this afternoon at Washburn field. The following veterans of last year will be out: Captain Cary, Steele, Sherry, Vandemoer and Sinton. Heald and Wilson, two likely substitutes of last season, have a fine chance to make the team. Murphy may play again. Smith, the star halfback of last year, wired the college yesterday that he will be unable to attend school this fall. Whitaker is in school, but says he will not play football, although an effort is being made to induce him to change his mind. The first game of the season will be played at Washburn field September 25, between the Tigers and the Terrors.

Coach Richards had his Terrors out last night, putting them through a stiff practice. He has received an offer for a game at Butte, Mont., Thanksgiving day.

PRESIDENT AS A FAN—SAYS HE LIKES "REDS"

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—At the National league grounds the President saw his biggest baseball crowd. There were more than 30,000 people packed into the stands and bleachers and overflowing into the playing field. The President sat in one of the open sections of the double-decked stand and thoroughly enjoyed a brilliant game in which the two greatest pitchers of the league — Mathewson of New York and Brown of Chicago faced each other and in which New York won.

President Taft, when he first reached the park, went down on the field and shook hands with members of both teams. Proceeding then to the reserved section in the stand he held an impromptu reception in which he met "Pop" Anson, the famous old Chicago player; Garry Herrmann, president of the National Baseball commission, and John A. Heydler, president of the National league. "Texas" Reilly of San Antonio, who rode horseback all the way to Chicago to present a formal invitation to Mr. Taft to visit that city, also met the President at the ball game.

"Mr. President, who are you for, Chicago or New York?"

"I'm for Cincinnati," declared the President with an anxious look at the score board which showed a 3 to 3 tie between Cincinnati and Pittsburg in the seventh inning. But just then the score board boy marked up four for Pittsburg in the eighth and two in the ninth and the President declared that he was dumbfounded.

ON IGNORANCE

From the Washington Star.

Bishop W. A. Guerry of South Carolina told at a dinner party in Columbia a number of amusing anecdotes about ignorance.

"A verger in a young friend's church," he said, "on being asked if the rector was married, answered,

"'No, ma'am; he's a chalybeate.'

"And it was probably in this same town that a newspaper, accusing the rector of being too 'high,' said:

"'He practices, we are informed, the most unblushing form of celibacy.'

"In the next paragraph came the sneer:

"'With unusual pomp he celebrates the evening service—or evening matins, as he prefers to say.'"

THE HARRIMAN FORTUNE AND OTHERS.

IN leaving his entire fortune to his wife and naming her as executrix of his will, Mr Harriman followed the example of the late Russell Sage Neither man was conspicuous as a philanthropist; though Harriman is reported to have given considerable sums to charitable enterprises, while history fails to record that Russell Sage ever gave away a cent The wise disposition of large sums of money in educational and charitable work is a task that requires much time and study, and it is probable that Mr. Harriman did not enter this field simply because he did not have the time to devote to it.

Neither could Russell Sage have been persuaded to devote time to such enterprises, even if he had possessed the inclination, for like Harriman he worked unremittingly until the end But although Mr. Sage was undeniably the stingiest multi-millionaire this country has produced, there is good reason to believe that he intended that his fortune should be devoted to philanthropic purposes after his death. Therefore he left it entirely to his wife without qualification or condition, and as Mrs. Sage had been known for many years to be deeply interested in charitable work it was plain from the moment the Sage will was made public that its ultimate disposition would be for the betterment of humanity

It would be interesting to know whether Mr. Harriman had a like intention in devising his entire property to his wife. He made no bequests to friends or relatives or to institutions of any kind. In view of his well-known interest in certain charitable enterprises, particularly in aiding the children of the poor, it is naturally to be supposed that he intended a part at least of his fortune to be used eventually in some such work. But while Mrs. Sage has no children or other close connections who might have a claim on the vast fortune left to her, Mrs. Harriman has four children, and therefore the bulk of her husband's estate will presumably be kept in the family.

FORTUNES THAT SHRINK. It is interesting to note how invariably rich men's fortunes or rather, estimates of their fortunes shrink after their death. The Sage estate was generally supposed to be worth somewhere between $100,000,000 and $150,000,000, but, as we recall it, the actual value was found to be about $60,000,000 or $70,000,000. Immediately after Harriman's death newspaper guesses placed his fortune anywhere from $50,000,000 to $500,000,000—the latter sum so obviously absurd that it could not be taken seriously. Now a Wall Street financial publication is quoted as declaring "on the highest authority" that Mr. Harriman's property amounted to between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000. The chances are that when the estate is settled up it will be found to be considerably less even than the smaller estimate.

Most of us get so used to talking in millions, even though we never see them, that sums of seven or eight figures roll glibly from our tongues with scant appreciation of their real meaning Even in this day of big fortunes a million dollars is a lot of money, and if the truth were known the number of men who actually possess fifty millions is much smaller than is popularly supposed. Perhaps Harriman was one of them, but nobody need be surprised if his estate is found to fall short of that amount,

THE KISS HYGIENIC.

WHILE other men of genius and perseverance have been turning their attention in various directions for the discovery of a "new thing under the sun a German inventor has discovered the kiss hygienic, or at any rate a means by which the pleasant art of osculation may be practiced without danger to health. His invention consists of a contrivance of silk gauze in an ivory or metal frame to be placed between two pairs of lips before they meet The gauze must be previously soaked in a disinfectant and, doubtless to add to the popularity of his patent, the inventor points out that the gauze may also be given the scent of roses cloves, peppermint or any beautiful smelling flower

This suggestion will of course appeal to all people of common sense as a sanitary measure But the trouble is that as a rule the emotions of which kissing is a visible token have slight connection with hygiene and it is to be feared that the German gentleman will not amass a fortune from the sale of his contrivance When prompted by the innocent sweetness of a little child to honor it with a kiss who would care enough about such unpleasant things as microbes and disease germs to hesitate draw out the gauze disinfector and apply it as prescribed? Or what girl when her admirer reaches the psychological moment for which she has possibly long patiently waited, would ask him to wait a moment while she fumbled for her germ killer and adjusted it correctly?

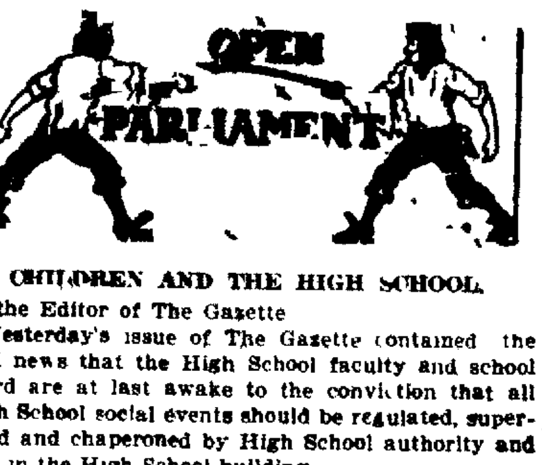

We are prone to become impatient with the wise men who seem to delight in discovering that most pleasant things are not conducive to either mental or physical health and in the matter of kissing it is more than probable that we shall continue to them openly defy At any rate, rather than bother with a microbe swatter such as this German inventor describes it would seem better to drop kissing altogether and adopt the Maori mode of expressing affection by rubbing noses

COLORADO COLLEGE.

THIS week Colorado College commences another school year We begin to notice in increasing numbers the young men and women who have gathered from a wide radius to take advantage of the excellent education which the College affords full of vigor and ambitious to attain to the privileges of a liberal education

Colorado College is a valuable asset to the city The state of efficiency to which it has been raised attracts the most desirable class of students those who are in earnest in their studies and will become a credit to their college, and also a welcome acquisition to the younger society of the city. Again, the reputation of the College attracts many parents seeking a suitable home where the children may receive a thorough education without having to go away to towns at a distance. And it is hardly necessary to point out that every family even every student coming to Colorado Springs for the purpose of education, assists the financial prosperity of the town.

It is for the welfare of the whole community that Colorado Springs should grow in importance as an educational center The city is already in possession of one excellent college, and to work together for the enlargement and improvement of Colorado College would seem to be to the best interests of the citizens of this city rather than to aid in the multiplication of competitive schools elsewhere in the State

CHILDREN AND THE HIGH SCHOOL.

To the Editor of The Gazette

Yesterday's issue of The Gazette contained the glad news that the High School faculty and school board are at last awake to the conviction that all High School social events should be regulated, supervised and chaperoned by High School authority and held in the High School building

From a parent's point of view, three elements enter into the consideration of this matter

First Health—In this altitude a big margin of sleep and outdoor, unexciting life is necessary for growing bodies and minds Obviously, social events should be held on Friday or holiday nights and Saturday and holiday afternoons and the evening hours should be from 7 00 to 10 30 o'clock

Second Expense This has been a bugbear and stumbling block to many a student and family. Decorations, dress carriages, room hire, lights, refreshments, flowers, late suppers, all count up enormously and are profitless to all except the florist, liveries, confectioners, etc

Third Protection for the Morals—Most of our High School students are young-in the "teens." Is it any more proper and safe for them to assemble, unsupervised, unchaperoned because it is a High School affair? Is it their fault or ours if "means to do evil makes evil deeds done" at the most delicate, impressionable, susceptible age of our girls and the most virile and passionate age of our boys?

Milton says, "ye that have ulcers and your pride conceal them, ye must have ulcers still, for none can heal them" Our police, probation and humane officers, our district attorneys and the managers of those institutions to which fathers and mothers are compelled to turn, in their agony, for secrecy and assistance all unite in testifying that an alarming portion of the boys and girls who fall, are students of High Schools 18 out of 29 cases for the year 1907.

Who are our children's keepers?

A MOTHER.

THE COUNCIL.

To the Editor The Gazette:

In your editorial in today's Gazette in regard to our Council, you say, "they have been in office nearly two months and have not done much" Have you forgotten that they have ordered two horses and buggies for two commissioners, besides raising the salaries of the Chief of Police et al? What more can you expect of them, when they were elected and expected to run our city on business principles?

AFRAID OF AIRSHIPS.

To the Editor of The Gazette

The editorial in today's issue, "Aviation a Commercial Fact," suggests some possibilities which evidently have not been taken into account generally, in the sudden burst of universal surprise and wonder at this twentieth century achievement of navigating the air Your deductions are correct in predicting a large and increasing industry in the manufacturing of airships in the near future and as there is little doubt that compared to the automobile business it will be infinitely more rapid in growth, owing to the far less cost of production, hence it will be no very great stretch of the imagination to witness thousands of these machines in the air carrying from one to a dozen or more passengers Now as a natural consequence our streets, lawns and premises will become the dumping ground of all the sewage and filth that rightfully belong to the sewers to say nothing of empty vessels dropped indiscriminately from a height of a death dealing distance on man and beast Our clothing, too may be rendered unfit for use, with no possible means of obtaining evidence against offenders Besides the contaminated surface of the ground would attract swarms of the deadly house fly, arousing the attention of boards of health in every community. The mind can not conjecture how far reaching the nuisance may extend Again as inborn destructionists exist in every country, life and property are absolutely and entirely at their mercy, and the air will become the home of the vicious and lawless thus aero clubs and manufacturers unconsciously becoming accessories

How long would the people submit to such a condition They would rise in their might and demand legislation to prevent the make and use of every dangerous aerial machine which threatens the life and comfort of the citizen and they would hold every maker and owner amenable to law

With the lawless in their element free from any fear of detection and capture the more costly the buildings and the larger the manufacturing establishments will they become special objects of their vindictiveness and attack All commerce would be ruined and world anarchy the result

As for the utility of converting airships into war ships it will not only be monstrously inhuman but universally condemned It is to be hoped that a national congress will convene to consider these possibilities before too much money is expended in experimenting with such dangerous engines of destruction

THE REAL TROUBLE.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger

Governor Fort says there must be more law for Atlantic City There is enough law there now. The trouble is that it is impossible to indict a whole community as Burke pointed out about one hundred and forty years ago

There's a man in the world who is never turned down wherever he chances to stray, he gets the glad hand in the populous town, or out where the farmers make hay he's greeted with pleasure on deserts of sand and deep in the aisles of the woods wherever he goes there's the welcoming hand—he's The Man Who Delivers the Goods. The failures of life sit around and complain the gods haven't treated them white, they've lost their umbrellas whenever there's rain, and they haven't their lanterns at night, men tire of the failures who fill with their sighs the air of their own neighborhoods, there's one who is greeted with love-lighted eyes he's The Man Who Delivers the Goods One fellow is lazy, and watches the clock, and waits for the whistle to blow, and one has a hammer, with which he will knock, and one tells a story of woe, and one if requested to travel a mile will measure the perches and roods; but one does his stunt with a whistle or smile he's The Man Who Delivers the Goods One man is afraid that he'll labor too hard—the world isn't yearning for such; and one man is always alert, on his guard, lest he put in a minute too much; and one has a grouch or a temper that's bad, and one is a creature of moods; so it's hey for the joyous and rollicking lad—for the One Who Delivers the Goods!

THE WELCOME MAN.

The Daily Chit-Chat

Do you have more to do than you can possibly get done?

Then you, of all people, can't afford to forget that concentration is the first principle of accomplishment.

"How DO you get so much done?" I heard a woman who accomplishes wonders asked the other day. She looked puzzled for a moment. The people who do unusual things can seldom tell just why they do them.

"I don't know," she said finally, "unless it's that I do each thing just as hard as I can and then when it's done I forget it just as hard."

Awhile back I quoted what Edward Everett Hale said about bearing troubles that some people bore three kinds at once, those they had now, those they had had and those they expected to have.

It's much the same way about work. Some people try to do today's work, review yesterday's work, and think about tomorrow's all at once. Naturally, the all-important, present task only gets about one-third the attention it ought to have.

This tendency is one that I have always had great trouble in overcoming myself. I had to own the truth of the accusation when someone said to me "The trouble with you is that you are always thinking of what you're going to do next, instead of what you're doing now."

The man who looks too much at the goal he wants to arrive at, instead of the path by which he must reach that goal, is apt to hinder himself by tripping and falling

The haste that slights the present task in its anxiety to be at the next one is the haste that makes waste

"I don't know what to do first," I heard a busy housekeeper say the other day, when she was confronting a very full day's work.

And then, instead of deciding what to do first, doing it and then doing the next thing she flew undecidedly from one thing to another, dividing her attention and dribbling her time.

Of course you've heard and seen the same process Maybe you've said and done it yourself

Alice Freeman Palmer, the first president of Wellesley college probably packed as much into each day as any woman who ever lived.

Someone who knew her methods explains the phenomenon in this way

She seldom hurried, never worried, admitted no regrets for the past or anxieties for the future. From these insidious dangers she was saved by habits of concentrated attention. As each separate person, topic or situation came forward for judgment, she gave it her whole mind, and then after sentence pronounced, from her whole mind it disappeared also

By concentration, and by concentration only, can any large amount of work be accomplished.

GOAND DOWNS

A WHITE ROSE FROM HER RAVEN HAIR

A white rose from her raven hair,
As on the balcony she dreamed,
Fell while Summer stars silver light
O'er the dear face so softly gleamed;
I eager caught the bonnie bloom,
Ere it could swift drop to my feet,
With kiss I prest it to my heart
Where 'twill rest till its last, fond beat

Thhe red lips hummed a passion-song,
We sang together in dead years,
But, ah 'twas sadder than of old,
Each note wet with such lonely tears
Her loved harp lay hushed at her feet,—
How changed from far-off then and now'—
No rare gems gleamed in her rich lace,
Nor coronet on her white brow;

She'd cast them all aside, that night,
As if her heart was brooding o'er
Not baubles of her queenly state
But just the simple life of yore
Her lord owned proudest heritage,
Broad lands, blue blood and ancient name,
But ah, all stained with vice and debt'
Her gold wiped out the princely shame.

She crushed—ah, me so long agone'—
The passion of her girlish life
And at his feet laid low her gold,
To be a pauper Title's wife'
Her name in tender, olden days,
Was only, simply—"Bessie, dear,"
Now, crowned with coronet, she's styled,
Proudly—My Lady Vaughn de Vere'
O, shallow sham' O, paltry pride'
Just foam on Life's tide as it flows;
For all their titles, pomp, blue blood,
I would not barter this dead rose'

MONEY AWAITS CLAIMANTS

Facts About Unclaimed Treasure in Banks.—Estimate of Enormous Balances Without Owners.

From Answers.

Fifty millions of unclaimed deposits in the coffers of banks! Such was the amazing total arrived at a few years ago by the Edinburgh Merchants company, which petitioned parliament with the same object as a bill recently introduced in the house of commons that all such balances shall be confiscated by the state.

Whether the estimate is fairly accurate it is impossible to say, because bankers make no returns of unclaimed funds in their possession and refuse to give any information on the subject. But banks unquestionably hold enormous sums for which no owners are forthcoming.

An indirect proof of this is that savings banks, which are obliged to publish their accounts, invariably acknowledge having some dormant and claimed balances. Only a few months since one made a special effort to discover the owners of a number of such accounts, but, though it found the people entitled to £5,172, it was unable to trace the owners of deposits aggregating £6,154.

Orphaned Thousands.

Further evidence to the same purport is supplied on the occasion of a bank failure When the Western Bank of Scotland went into liquidation many bu... [illegible] were unclaimed and 20 years afterward there remained owners as £1,936 In connection with the liquidation of the City of Glasgow bank again no claims were lodged in respect to £54 173 and though subsequently some of the money was claimed the Assets company not long since had thousands of pounds for which owners could not be found

Look too at the special manner in which the Old Lady of Threadneedle street deals with dormant balances of long standing She invests them, and the interest which accrues is sufficient to pension the widows of her deceased clerks

Besides such testimony as this, there are many isolated incidents which go to show that if the banks were made to disgorge the money to which they have no right the ever-tightening grip of taxation might be promptly relaxed

A mysterious account stands in an alias of a maiden lady After she had been a customer at a certain joint stock bank for some years she opened a second account in an assumed name—a practice which is constantly adding to unclaimed hoards in banks—and paid in a lump sum of £7,000 Subsequently her original account was frequently dealt with, but the other was never touched After her death her executors withdrew the balance of the first account About the £7,000, however they said nothing—nor did the bank

For business reasons a French gentleman once wished to communicate with a certain English lady and wrote to her London agents, who, on making inquiries, discovered that she had died in a lunatic asylum Her affairs were then investigated, with the result that a solicitor recovered from a bank an account in her name which had been dormant for some time

Dis-Banking.

A Dublin bank once issued a list of unclaimed property in its possession Here are two suggestive items from it:

Box containing a number of silver articles, coins, medals and seals, and having on it a crest and the name 'E S Cooper'

"Box containing diamonds and articles of jewelry lodged by Dr Andrew Blake and George Jennings on December 22, 1795"

There are many similar hoards in Irish banks, numbers of which have remained in them since the rebellion. Some years ago an Irish peer, when in Melbourne, heard in romantic circumstances that a quantity of plate had been deposited in a Dublin bank by one of his ancestors at the beginning of the nineteenth century, and that there it still remained The bank, on his communicating with it, at once admitted his claim and delivered up the treasure.

WOMAN GOES 16,728 MILES

Miss Mansfield the First to Make Cape-to-Cairo Trip.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

LONDON—The first white woman to traverse Africa from the Cape of Good Hope to Cairo is Miss Charlotte Mansfield, a novelist. Miss Mansfield arrived in London a few days ago, after a journey which occupied seven months during which she traveled 16,728 miles Her diary classifies her travels as follows:

11,728 miles by steamship.
3,465 miles by railway.
525 miles by gunboat.
930 miles by "meshillah" and walking.

The "meshillah" is a hammock slung between two poles and carried by native bearers.

Miss Mansfield's itinerary was: London, Cape Town, Buluwayo, Salisbury, Umtali, Victoria Falls, Livingstone, Broken Hill, Abercorn, Lake Nyassa.

Miss Mansfield, who was accompanied only by negro bearers, was treated with the greatest veneration by the natives. She said:

"They called me the white donna," she told an interviewer, "and signaled with drums from village to village that a white donna was on the road.

"They had never seen a white woman before, and in some of the villages even white men were unknown The people all came out of the villages to meet me, and, throwing their bows and arrows and spears on the ground, fell flat on their faces Sometimes the reception was almost too effusive, for four times in one day the meshillah was dopped through by bearers being beaten off by the natives, who wished to carry me through the village themselves

"They had never seen hair of my color before, they said (Miss Mansfield's hair is golden), and the women were deeply interested in my boots Chanda McKubu, the chieftainess of one of the villages in northeast Rhodesia, came out to meet me in person. A cake of soap was her only request"

In addition to the shooting boots, which so impressed the native women, Miss Mansfield wore knickerbockers, a short skirt, a Norfolk jacket, and a sun helmet, with a fur coat for the cold nights

Except for the eerie cry of the hyenas at night Miss Mansfield was untroubled by wild animals She had a personal encounter with a lion, however It was near Fife in northeast Rhodesia She was walking with her little dog not far from the camp, when 50 yards away she saw a lion but before she could look around for a tall tree the lion disappeared

Miss Mansfield is greatly impressed with Rhodesia "I did not find a single white man or woman there discontented," she said. "Their only want was more white people."

PRODUCER GAS SOLVES PROBLEM

Small Irrigator to Use Farm Waste for Generating Power for Pumping Water.

From the Seattle Times.

For the benefit of small ranchers in particular, Louis Duhau a civil engineer of the Argentine Republic, who was appointed by his government as a delegate to the National Irrigation congress and sent to this country to study irrigation, is spreading the idea of a plant to irrigate 100,000 acres of by producer gas, which may be made from the waste of a farm, such as straw, corn stalks, leaves and sawdust. After spending six months in the United States and Canada, Mr. Duhau will return to the Argentine Republic and immediately begin the installation of a plant to irrigate 100,000 acres of land by pumping water with weak gas

The cost of pumping, where sufficient water power is not available, has discouraged many poor ranchers, and consequently much land that would otherwise be growing luxurious orchards and grain remains arid. To place a system within the means of these men Mr. Duhau is trying to induce them to use producer gas, which, he says, may be made from the residue that not only goes to waste, but is a nuisance on ranches.

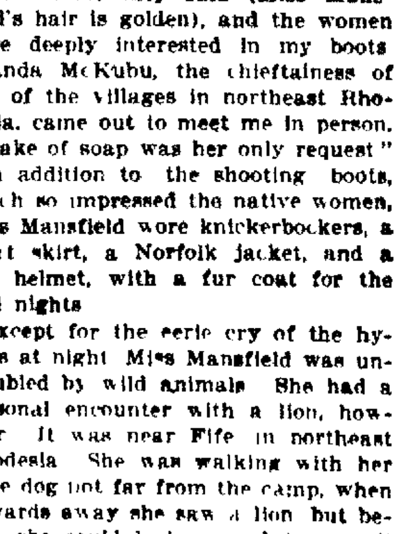

"I have just come from Paris," said Duhau, "where I have been experimenting with producer gas. Straw makes good poducer gas, but any of the residue about a farm may be used Producer gas may be used in most any kind of gas engine, making a cheap power With producer gas land may be irrigated at a cost of $3 an acre in some places in the $35 an acre in some places in the United States For instance, it would cost about $800 to install a plant that would irrigate 150 acres of land.

"This would be within reach of a poor man It costs practically nothing to run an engine with weak gas in this country because there is all the residue going to waste In France it is not of much importance because straw is almost as valuable as coal: but here and in the Argentine Republic straw is cheap, or worth nothing, so why not use it for power purposes?"

WILLIAMITE UP AGAIN

Fight Over Terms of Lease Leads to Court Arraignment of Two Men.

In the limelight again, this time being in the limelight against this time because of a strenuous argument of the pugilistic variety between one of their members, Henry Mohler, and T. B. Schooler, who has a lease on a farm owned by the Williamites four miles east of this city. Schooler and Mohler each had the other arrested yesterday afternoon, and the warrants were sworn out in Justice Toombs' court. Both charge assault. They were released under a bond of $50 each and will have a hearing Tuesday afternoon.

Mohler claims that he had arranged with Schooler, when the lease was granted, to live in one room of the house and look after his crop, which was a part of the farm. He says that Schooler tried to drive him away last Wednesday. A fistic argument resulted.

HOW THE CABINET TAKES ITS ANNUAL OUTING

HOW does the government worry along without the cabinet? How can President Taft manage to run that summer capital at Beverly without his advisers? Here are the very pillars of state, the mainstays of the nation, scattered about no one knows where, and what is more, nobody seems to care a great deal. They are on their vacations — some in Massachusetts, some in Seattle, some in Tennessee and the rest in concealment. To paraphrase a popular and divorce breeding song: "The cabinet's gone to the country. Hurray! Hurray!"

But it is too serious a subject for frivolity. How is the ship of state to run without pilots? How are the headless departments to continue? Who will look after the red tape and sign 400 papers an hour without looking at one of them? Who will foregather at the White House on cabinet days and solemnly offer advice to the president, who will then do as he pleases? Who will grace pink teas and champagne dinners in Washington? Who will do all the things that cabinet officers are supposed to do and several that they are not while our chiefs of state are off fishing, hanging on to the ropes at summer resorts or reading the latest novels under the old apple tree?

At last reports Secretary Knox was at Valley Forge, but he was not leaving bloody footprints in the [illegible]. Secretary MacVeagh was at his New Hampshire summer home, although once he ran down to Beverly to see that Senator Aldrich did not sell the president a monetary gold brick. George von Lengerke Meyer, secretary of the Washington smart set and incidentally of the navy, is fishing in the Restigouche, which is situated somewhere between the northern boundary of the United States and the north pole. Jacob McGavock Dickinson, secretary of war, of the Philippines and of the Panama canal, is in Tennessee raising fat stock and wondering if Taft's latest effort at revision downward of the [illegible] will leave Jacob McGavock the heavy [illegible] of the administration. Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel is at Marion, [illegible], trying with some success not to live up to the labor end of his department and now and then breaking into uncontrollable grief over the retirement of Director of the Census North. "Tama Jim" Wilson, the official farmer of the administration, is at large searching to discover new bugs with which to entertain his scientists. Attorney General George Washington Wickersham is at his New York law offices endeavoring to keep the corporations from employing him. [illegible] Achilles Ballinger is at Seattle watching apprehensively for the approach of Gifford Pinchot and thankful that Africa is so far from the United States. As for [illegible] General Hitchcock, "the boy wonder," nobody knows exactly where he is since the open season for corralling delegates is not now on. There are rumors, however, that he will emerge in time to join the Taft special somewhere in Arizona.

The Government Clerk.

This accounts for the whole bunch, or, rather, it does not account for them. It merely mentions the spots at which they were last seen, the holes into which they disappeared. It but makes certain the melancholy fact that they are all away from the government steering wheel. Washington is a city from which greatness has departed. It is given over to the weather man and the government clerk—in other words, to heat and lassitude. The government clerk is a creature of the civil service and a victim of that tired feeling. He is afflicted with temperamental ennui. He exudes more listlessness than anybody outside the Weary Willie class. His only approach toward enthusiasm is at the lunch and quitting hours. He has a job for life and therefore does not need to work. He goes through certain motions, of course, the same being precisely like the motions of his predecessors for a hundred years. To inaugurate new and improved methods requires effort, and to this the government clerk has a native and acquired aversion. He seldom or never goes on a vacation for the reason that a [illegible] and the government clerk is [illegible] that all change. With him [illegible] a habit of the [illegible] clock an occupation. If he has energy when he enters the service this oozes out in the [illegible] of Washington. In [illegible] he has attained a position [illegible] individual initiative [illegible] is positively disliked. He is a mere mechanical appurtenance of government, a thing run by routine, a wheel turned by red tape belting. That is the government [illegible] yesterday, today and forever. Congresses, cabinets, presidents, may come and go, but he [illegible]. [illegible] have tried to infuse [illegible] to galvanize and [illegible] him. Vain effort! In [illegible] and he has [illegible] him. He is the government [illegible] so in summer and actually so the year round. So let the cabinet go play. The government work is on the job, or at least as much on it as he ever gets, and we shall let it go at that.

Inertia at Its Apogee

When the present advisers of the president went into office [illegible] did so with high hopes burning. A few of them who had been in the game knew better than to let high hopes or any other kind of hopes burn in Washington. [illegible] departments [illegible] on a business basis. This shows that they had never met his royal majesty King Log, the government clerk. They thought he was there to obey orders and to do as he was told! Now they know better. Not that the government clerk resisted! To resist requires a positive outlay of force, and that is not the government clerk's way. He did not need to resist. His superb inertia was all that was required. Physicists know the power of inertia, and cabinet officers learn it sooner or later. The government clerk is in [illegible]. When the new cabinet members butted into this [illegible] lassitude it was like the old riddle of the irresistible force meeting the immovable body, with this important difference: In the case of an irresistible force meeting an immovable body nobody has ever been able to tell just what would happen, but in the matter of the new cabinet members crashing into the inertia of the departments everybody knows what did happen—viz, that after the collision the cabinet members ruefully rubbed the tops of their heads and admitted that the wall they had been trying to butt over was really of stone. Nagel, Wickersham and Ballinger are the special ones who thus raised knots on their craniums and had an executive headache in consequence. After several months of futile effort in this direction they decided to take a rest. Nobody should [illegible], for they need it.

To paraphrase again that trouble raising song:

The cabinet's gone to the country!
Hurray! Hurray!
They thought it best; they needed rest.
That's why they went away
They took their dream pipes with them
Hurray! Hurray!
They tried to get work from the government clerk,
And now they've gone away.

Yes, if ever human beings were entitled to the rest cure and to solitude these new cabinet members are the ones. They have run afoul of the system, and the system is doing business as before. Nobody has ever been able to reform or modify it. [illegible] Roosevelt with all his boundless energy could scarcely do more than make a dent.

Practically every new cabinet member that drops into Washington goes up against it slapbang and after the encounter retires for repairs. That is what Nagel, Wickersham and Ballinger did and are doing. They have gone away to think it over and become readjusted. They will return in the fall wiser if not more amiable men.

They will then be content to sign papers without asking fool questions and to attend cabinet meetings, pink teas and champagne dinners in [illegible]. In the meantime Uncle Sam can manage to wiggle along very comfortably without his departmental heads. The departments have a way of [illegible] themselves. They [illegible] what possible way—antiquated, cumbersome and listless—but nothing less than a combination of an invading cyclone, earthquake and volcanic eruption would be sufficient to effect a change.

RADIUM-PRODUCING ORES FOUND IN TELLER COUNTY

Specimens Sent to Colorado School of Mines for Analysis and Definite Classification.

Special to The Gazette

CRIPPLE CREEK, Sept. 16. Samples of pitchblende and uraninite, taken from claims located in Teller county, and known to contain a fair percentage of uranium and therefore radio activity and hence radium, were forwarded on Wednesday, to the Vinson Walsh research department, at the Colorado School of Mines, at Golden, by Sam W. Vidler, mining editor of the Cripple Creek Times.

The ore was brought to the city by Carl Sextus, the well-known prospector and locator of rare minerals, from claims located by him within the western section of the county, and the samples forwarded were generous ones, weighing six and one-half pounds. The pitchblende sample, No. 1, has all the characteristics of this class of ore, carrying both weight and the black luster of gun metal. The ore is massive and in grains, and its structure is columnar. The sample was also greasy to the touch, or pitch like.

Sample No. 2, believed to be uraninite, was a greyish-green in color, with a zinc-like appearance. It is also a pitchblende ore.

The fissures from which the samples were taken are described by the locator of the claims as strong and well defined. Between walls of the country rock, the mineralized zone in which the pitchblende is found is about three feet wide, but the ore is scattered through the mineralization like "raisins in cake."

The uraninite discovery is reported an immense vein between well defined walls, and is not a surface deposit.

Sextus, the locator of the claims, has already been approached by parties seeking investment, but will await the analysis before accepting financial aid.

GOLD ISSUE HILL MINE INCREASES TONNAGE

Special to The Gazette

CRIPPLE CREEK, Sept. 16.—The tonnage under treatment at the Gold Issue mill has been raised to 60 tons daily, and by the end of the month the plant will be running at its full capacity of 100 tons. No clean up will be made until the mill has been running a full month, but the zinc precipitates are showing good values of the yellow [illegible]. The tonnage treated is being daily increased and the aerial railroad transporting the ore from the Midget mine is a pronounced success.

DEADWOOD MINE ENTERS SHIPPING LIST

Special to The Gazette.

ALTMAN, Colo., Sept. 6.—The Deadwood mine on Bull Cliffs has re-entered the shipping list, and the United Gold Mines company, owning the property, must be accredited with another producing mine. The property was recently leased, with adjoining properties to the Findley Consolidated company, with power to sublease, and the ore going into the bins is being mined by Hughes and company operating a block of ground at the 300-foot level. A car of ore will be loaded out this week, and the ore shipped will be of a fair milling grade.

RENEWED DEMAND FOR STOCKS BOOSTS PRICES

Union Pacific Recovers on Publication of Simple Provisions of Harriman Will.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—There was a renewed outburst of speculative demand for stocks today. The movement again converged on United States Steel, Union Pacific and Reading. In the last named stock a process of digestion of profits was discernible which acted as a restraint on its price movement, in spite of the enormous dealings in it. Individual transactions in United States Steel were scarcely less striking, and the aggregate dealings even larger than in Reading.

Even the copper stocks got some benefit, although authorities in that trade continue to report large accumulation of stocks in European hands and pressure to sell refined copper by former speculative buyers in this country.

Union Pacific loomed into marked prominence again, following publication of the brief and simple provisions of Mr. Harriman's will.

The banks continue to lose cash, and the fact that the subtreasury alone has absorbed almost twice as much as the actual surplus reserve of the banks as shown by the last bank statement, caused no apparent hesitation in the large speculative commitments going on in the stock market.

Rates for time loans were marked up 1-4 per cent for various maturities to the highest rates touched since the business revival set in. The call loan rate went as low as 2 1-4 per cent during the day, although 3 per cent was still the ruling rate.

Bonds were firm. Total sales par value, $4,338,000.

U. S. bonds were unchanged on call.

RICH ORE FOUND IN THE LOWER LEVELS

Special to The Gazette

GOLDFIELD, Colo., Sept. 16.—Although lacking confirmation from official sources one of the most important discoveries in the district's history is reported made at the 1,400-foot level of the main shaft of the Golden Cycle Mining company. As compared with the depth obtaining at the Vindicator main shaft, the Golden Cycle 1,400-foot level is 141 feet below the 1,400-foot level of the Vindicator No. 1 and the ore has therefore been found at a depth of 1,541 feet. Between the 600 and 800-foot levels the ore zones in the Golden Cycle were practically barren or of low value, but deeper development in this immediate section to the Vindicator and Cycle mines has again proven the continuance of unknown depths of the district's ore bodies and veins.

LIGHT RECEIPTS ADVANCE CHICAGO WHEAT MARKET

Shorts Were Active Bidders Also in Kansas City and St. Louis.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Light receipts in the southwest contributed in a large degree to a considerable advance in wheat prices here today. The market closed strong, with prices up ⅝@⅞, compared with yesterday's final figures. Corn prices also advanced sharply, and at the close were ⅝@⅞ to 1⅛ above the previous close. Oats and provisions also followed the upward trend. Although wheat prices showed a substantial gain as a result of the day's transactions, the great majority of traders were unable to offer any satisfactory reason for the strength which was manifested the greater part of the session. The situation in the southwest was given, however, as the most logical reason.

Receipts at Kansas City and St. Louis, which have been light for some time, were still lighter today, and as a result cash prices there reached a higher premium. A bulge in corn was another factor that helped to inspire demand for wheat. Shorts were active bidders nearly all day. The opening was weak on selling, brought out by a decline of ⅝ to 1 penny at Liverpool, and by a continued liberal movement in the northwest. An estimate of the Canadian crop in the northwest, which was made public today, and which indicates a crop much larger than generally anticipated, was a bearish factor early in the day. The market developed considerable firmness during the first half hour, and gained in strength as trading progressed.

AN AMERICAN CHILD IN LONDON

Her First Impressions and How She Described Them.

From the Washington Star.

The little American girl sailed early in the season with her mother for her first visit to England. With child's keen powers of observation, all on the alert after the 10 days' crossing, she seemed a veritable corkwitch, bobbing her head in and out of the carriage as they drove from the dock to the hotel.

"See, mamma—quick!" Breathlessly the small fingers pulled at her mother's sleeve as, the hansom swinging into Oxford Circus, she caught sight of the incessant stream of 'busses coming and going up and down High Holborn. Never in her life had she imagined such a sight as that presented by the passengers riding unconcernedly along, leaning against the rainbow-hued advertisements of the cumbrous wooden-backed seats.

"Look, mamma," came the high, shrill, childish staccato; "look at the funny little street cars with garrets or top filled full of people sitting on their trunks!"

The little American girl and her mother having secured satisfactory accommodations at the hotel, a friendly Englishwoman seated near them at luncheon chatted to the strangers within the gates.

"Yes, Isn't It?"

"Pleasant weather," tentatively put forth the mother. "Yes, it is, isn't it?" responded the mellow English voice, with the inevitable rising intonation. The little American girl paused thoughtfully over the generous slice of cold joint upon her plate.

"You've been having rather bad weather, I understand, just as we have across the water," followed the mother. "Yes, we have, haven't we?" came the typical response. And thus the talk continued, the mother putting forth timorous bits of commonplace, to each of which the Englishwoman smilingly responded with the unconscious eternal query: "Yes, it is, isn't it?" The little American girl fidgeted about uneasily in her chair, scarcely restrained from open outbreak until the conclusion of the luncheon. Once safely across the threshold she could stand it no longer, calling out in a stage whisper:

"Voice Ran Upstairs."

"Wasn't it funny, mamma? Every time that lady spoke her voice ran upstairs with itself!"

In the course of their wanderings the little American girl and her mother went to the thatched roof village at Shanklin, on the Isle of Wight. An ancient servitor showed them over the old church where, unlocking a high-backed pew, he lifted the child on to one of the narrow, cushionless seats extending about three sides of the quaint inclosure. Returned to their lodgings, the little American girl excitedly rushed to the rosy-cheeked landlady.

"Guess where we've been!" she cried. "Mamma and I went to church and an old man unlocked the pantry door and we sat on the shelves."

It is to the honor of Swede that the fact of a woman working for her living in no way lowers her social position.

COAT OF JETTED NET.

The transparent coat is a feature of dressy wear this season. Of course, there is no warmth to such a coat, but its effect over a frock of delicate color is very beautiful. Over this corn-colored satin costume the black lace coat shows to good advantage and the effect is completed by the big hat faced with pale yellow and heaped with paradise aigrettes in black.

RUSSIA IS BUILDING WISELY AND WELL

BACK TO THE LAND IS THE CRY OF THE PEOPLE.

Two Million Settlors Are Developing the Western Part of the Russian Empire.

VI—RUSSIA'S FUTURE IN ASIA.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

HARBIN, Aug. 28.—That Russia's ambition to establish itself as an imperial power on the Pacific coast of Asia was not thwarted by the unsuccessful war with Japan is proved by the stupendous program of railway development and colonization now being carried out by the Russian government in eastern Asia. The Japanese victory merely caused Russia to change its plans a little—it did not affect the Russian purpose in the slightest degree.

Across the Amur river from Manchuria lies that great and fertile tract which takes its name from the river, a territory as large as Spain. It lies in the same latitude as Oregon, Washington, and British Columbia, and its agricultural future is intrinsically as bright. Further south, and lying eastward of Manchuria, is the Russian littoral. The coast is not promising, but further inland that section tapped by the railroad from Vladivostock north to Khabarovsk may be compared to the "Inland Empire" of the American northwest. A railroad from Khabarovsk westward along the north of Amur to a connection with the Trans-Siberian railroad in the Trans-Baikal country will soon be built; a project which means about the same thing as the construction of the Canadian Pacific meant to British Columbia.

Much has been said of late about the great tide of immigration into western Canada. The "American invasion" of Canada has called forth much comment, and statistics have been published to show that as many as 60,000 Americans have crossed over into Canada in a single year, seeking new homes. The settlement of the northwestern states has been wonderfully rapid, and the building up of Oklahoma and Texas has excited the wonder and admiration of the world.

Encouraging Immigration.

But over here in eastern Asia, all but unobserved by the world, the Russian government has organized and encouraged a migration and colonization which throws even the western American development into the shadow. In 1906, the year after the war ended, no less than 180,000 Russians moved from Europe and settled in the Amur, and the Russian littoral. In the following year the number was over 400,000. Thus in the second year after the war, after Russia's eastern Asiatic ambition was supposed to have been destroyed, the Russian government throws into this all but uninhabited country into this many people as come from Europe to the United States in a year, and far more than Canada has been able to attract. In 1908, last year, the immigration into the Amur, according to official Russian figures, was more than 600,000, and the total for this year is expected to be three quarters of a million. This means that in less than four years Russia has placed almost two million settlers in these undeveloped provinces, and the work is proceeding at such a rate that ten years will find five million Russians domiciled here. That means that Russia will do in ten years more than England has done in Australia in a century in the matter of building up population.

Back to the Land.

These immigrants from European Russia are being provided with land, with implements and with all kinds of government encouragement. Their estate is not, and never will be, comparable to that of American farmers, but their condition in the Amur is so much better than it was in European Russia that the effect will be to bring up the standards of living, and to increase the regard of the people for their government. The glowing reports of the fertility of this region, carried back to Russia by the soldiers of the great army which fought the Japanese, and the agrarian depression in Russia, were responsible in a large measure for beginning this great migration. But it could not have proceeded without government approval, and it could not have reached its present enormous proportions without government aid and encouragement.

All great natural migrations of mankind have been westward and southward. The race originated somewhere on the plains of northern or central Asia, and from thence the various tribes wandered off, always to the west if we except the doubtful case of the American aborigines. From this very country of Manchuria and the Amur went the tribes which have at various times invaded Europe under the names of Huns, Tartars and Turks. The Moguls of India and the Manchus of China originated here. All through the centuries the tide of the human flood has been away from this part of the world.

Mighty Exodus From Cities.

Now, in the twentieth century, aided by railroads and telegraphs, spurred on by dreams of commercial empire, the Russians refuse to accept a military defeat as final and plant this great peaceful conquest of eastern Asia. The migration eastward of two million people in a period of four years is absolutely unique in the history of the world. It is by far the greatest migration of one people known in modern times. The great stream of humanity which pours into America from Europe is drawn from a score of races and nations.

Ten years fromnow Russia will have a new province lying immediately north of Manchuria and Mongolia having a population greater than either Canada or Australia. Wheat fields will be developed, and Harbin will become to the world what it is now to Asia, the great flour-producing center. The six thousand-mile railroad to St. Petersburg will be double tracked the road through the Amur will be built, and the probability is that the railroad from Peking to Kalgan will be extended through Mongolia to Lake Baikal, thus cutting down the time from Peking to Moscow by three days, and giving China and Russia a route of direct communication wholly independent of Japanese influence or interference. When these things come to pass, as they surely will, Russia will then be impregnably intrenched. Then, the ambition to own an ice-free port—that hope which is never dead in the Russian breast—will inspire to action. The Japanese will lie between the Russians and that goal of all Muscovite desire.

Russia Planning for Future.

It is impossible to conceive an indefinite continuation of the present peaceful and harmonious relations between Russia and Japan in this country. Both have the same desire, both have the same contempt and disregard for China's sovereignty and rights. Each understands the others limitless and unscrupulous ambition. For the time being they have set a line between themselves, dividing not their territory but that part of China's territory which they still occupy and control in spite of their solemn obligations to withdraw "entirely and completely."

Realizing that the eyes of the world are most attracted now to the Japanese program, the Russians have adopted the wise policy of Bre'r Rabbit. They are lying low. They have proved themselves much more considerate of Chinese rights than have the Japanese and they have not [illegible] whatever in the way of the trade of other nations in northern Manchuria. [illegible] their position [illegible] so often [illegible] as that of the Japanese. In comparison the Russian behavior appears to be quite altruistic. But one must not expect unselfish altruism from St. Petersburg. The Russian ruling classes do not think in those terms. It all means that Russia is biding its time, and improving the shining hour by developing its eastern resources.

Both Japan and Russia are in Manchuria for the same purpose, but as they both seek the same prize, a prize which can not be divided, their positions are naturally antagonistic. Neither nation has any right in Manchuria, as both nations admitted when they ratified the treaty of Portsmouth. Both nations claim rights in utter disregard of that treaty.

China Is Logical Owner.

China, awakened to a sense of responsibility and aroused to the necessity of adopting western methods of government and industry, should have the right to develop Manchuria. The only possible ground upon which Russia and Japan may base a claim of right in Manchuria is that they will develop the country, something which China would not and could not do. But now that China is attempting to do something for Manchuria along modern lines, it finds itself in trouble with the Japanese fox and the Russian bear.

The Chinese, under a form of government older than Christendom, and without any of the advantages of modern [illegible] have maintained the largest nation upon earth in both area and population. That nation [illegible] under the ancient oriental conditions, was and is more prosperous and contented than either Russia or Japan. There is no class of Chinese equal to the gentry of Russia in learning, but neither is there a class of Chinese so low in the human scale as the Russian moujik, when relative values are considered. The Chinese have not accomplished as much as have the Japanese in the western arts of war and high finance, but they are far superior to the Japanese in the civilization of their everyday lives. China, as opposed to Russia and Japan, has not only the legal but the moral right to develop its own territory.

Japan Aggressive.

In this triangular fight for the control of Manchuria, this great empire of the future, China has the right and Russia and Japan have the might. A greater Japan, a Japan the captain of Asia leading the titanic struggle against white supremacy on earth, means the [illegible] of Russian dreams. A greater Russia, a Russia with its warm southern seaport on the Pacific and a great merchant marine and navy, means the total and permanent eclipse of the Rising Sun of Japan as the light of a world empire. A greater China, a China holding its own, planting and reaping in peace and despising the barbarity of war, means the restraint of the bloody appetites of both Muscovite and Nipponese ambition, means a peaceful Asia, and a prosperous western world. It is to the advantage of the nations of the west, morally, physically and financially, to uphold the Chinese rights and prevent by peaceful measures the great conflict which otherwise, inevitably, again will turn Manchuria into a field of blood.
